DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's request filed on 24 November 2003 for suspension of action in this application under 37 CFR 1.103(a), is denied as being improper. Action cannot be suspended in an application without a showing of good and sufficient cause for suspension of action. See MPEP § 709.

2. Applicant's petition under 37 CFR 1.103 filed 24 November 2003 is DISMISSED because the proper petition or processing fee of $130 required under 37 CFR 1.17 has not been submitted.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. Claims 35 and 36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite in that it fails to point out what is included or excluded by the claim language. This claim is an omnibus type claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1, 2, 8, 10-14, 18, 21-23, 28-36, 47-50, 69-74, 76-89, 91, 92, 94, and 96-113 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rounbehler et al. (U.S. Patent Number 5,099,743; hereinafter referred to as Rounbehler). Rounbehler discloses a highly selective, sensitive, fast detection system and method are disclosed for detecting vapors of specific compounds in air. Vapors emanating from compounds such as explosives, or stripped from surfaces using heat and suction from a hand-held sample gun, are collected on surfaces coated with gas chromatograph (GC) material which trap explosives vapors but repel nitric oxide, then are desorbed and concentrated in one or more cold spot concentrators. A high speed gas chromatograph (GC) separates the vapors, after which specific vapors are decomposed in two pyrolyzers arranged in parallel and the resulting nitric oxide is detected. A low temperature pyrolyzer with silver produces NO from nitramines or nitrite esters; a high temperature pyrolyzer decomposes all explosives vapors to permit detection of the remaining explosives. Also disclosed is a series arrangement of pyrolyzers and gas chromatographs and an NO detector to time-shift detection of certain vapors and facilitate very fast GC analyses. The use of hydrogen as a carrier gas, plus unique collectors and concentrators, high speed heaters, NO detectors, and very fast, temperature-programmable GC's enhance selectivity, sensitivity and speed of detection (Please see the abstract).

In regard to claim 1, a method for analyzing a gas sample comprising providing a gas sample, increasing it's pressure to compress the sample through focusing, and analyzing it using gas chromatography is disclosed. This is specifically discussed in column 14 line 17 through column 15 line 6.

In regard to claims 2, 8, 10-14, 18, 21-23, 28-36, 47-50, 69-74, 76-89, 91, 92, 94, and 96-104, though the limitations of these claims are not explicitly disclosed in the claims, these limitations are either design choices and/or inherent to gas chromatography systems and would therefore be obvious in view of the prior art of record.

In regard to claim 105, a method of analyzing VOC's comprising compressing a gas sample compressing VOC's to a smaller volume in a sample collection tube by focusing the gas to provide a focused sample, separating VOC components of the focused sample gas, and detecting the separated VOC components to provide analysis of the VOC content is not specifically disclosed, but since such a process is well established in Gas analysis arts, this would be obvious in view of the prior art of record.

In regard to claims 106-113, though the limitations of these claims are not explicitly disclosed in the claims, these limitations are either design choices and/or inherent to gas chromatography/analysis systems and would therefore be obvious in view of the prior art of record.

Allowable Subject Matter

6. Claim 90 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

7. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 2, 8, 10-14, 18, 21-23, 28-36, 47-50, 69-74, 76-89, 91, 92, 94, and 96-113 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
